

STANFORD
CENTER FOR INNOVATION IN GLOBAL HEALTH

Fighting to End Hunger at Home & Abroad: Ambassador Ertharin Cousin shares her journey & lessons learned

A Conversation in Global Health

with Ertharin Cousin | F SI Payne Distinguished Lecturer |
Former Executive Director of the World Food Programme |
TIME's 100 Most Influential People

MAY 28 | 12:00-1:00pm | Li Ka Shing Room 320

RSVP for the conversation & lunch:
www.tinyurl.com/CIGHErtharinCousin

Please arrive at 11:45am for lunch

Professor Ertharin Cousin has been fighting to end global hunger for decades. As executive director of the World Food Programme from 2012 until 2017, she led the world's largest humanitarian organization with 14,000 staff serving 80 million vulnerable people across 75 countries. As the US ambassador to the UN Agencies for Food and Agriculture, she served as the US representative for all food, agriculture, and nutrition related issues. Prior to her global work, Cousin lead the domestic fight to end hunger.

Stanford School of Medicine Senior Communications Strategist Paul Costello will interview Professor Cousin about her experiences, unique pathway, and the way forward for ending the global hunger crisis.

Stanford | FSE Center on Food Security and the Environment

HEALTH POLICY
Stanford

